WHAT TO WATCH FOR:

EMERGING SUBSTANCES IN OUR SCHOOLS AND COMMUNITY

"Changing lives, saving futures in Osage County"

Osage County
Anti-Drug
Community
Action Team

"Feel Free" drinks – marketed as energy/mood enhancers, but can act like depressants or opioids.

7-hydroxymitragynine (7OH) – extremely strong compound from the Kratom plant, often sold as chewable tablets;

ZAZA (Tianeptine) – called "gas station heroin," a synthetic opioid, still legal in many states with no age restriction.

Phenibut – powerful synthetic depressant, easy to buy online, not detectable on standard drug tests.

THC-infused drinks – marketed as hemp-derived, often found in gas stations, malls, and convenience stores.

Energy Drinks-Products labeled as "mood enhancers," "dietary supplements," or "all natural" may contain high-risk substances.

WHY IS THIS IMPORTANT FOR OUR SCHOOLS?

- Many of these substances do not show up on standard drug tests. Students may not smell like alcohol or cannabis—making detection harder.
- Use is shifting from alcohol toward cannabis products, THC drinks, and "legal" alternatives.
- These substances are often marketed as safe, natural, or healthy, which lowers student and parent concern.
- All of these substances can interfere with student performance and will go undetectable on most drug test.
- Data is showing decreases in illegal substance use but increases in misuse

"Legal Doesn't Always Mean Safe"
